This means you do not need a yellow fever vaccination to visit Zimbabwe, if you are travelling into Zimbabwe has announced it will partially reopen its tourism industry, one of the sectors worst affected by a three-month long lockdown. Restaurants were previously only allowed to serve take-aways. Zimbabwe's economy relies heavily on international tourism, which generates close to $1bn (£800m) from the more than two million tourists arrivals each year. The sector has been forced to close due to the coronavirus, with borders remaining closed except for returning residents. Tourism players will now focus on reviving domestic tourism.
