Author’s profile: Erskine Caldwell was the author of twenty-five novels, including God’s Little Acre and Tobacco Road. His books have sold eighty million copies and been translated into forty-three languages. He died in 1987.

Sales handle: In this forthright and unapologetic autobiography, esteemed author Erskine Caldwell recounts his personal and literary battles.

Book description:

In 1932, Erskine Caldwell’s first novel, Tobacco Road, was the center of controversy. Some critics condemned the book; others considered it to be the work of a genius. Today Caldwell’s fifty-plus books have sold more than 80 million copies worldwide, and his stature as a writer has been firmly established.

In With All My Might, Caldwell tells about his work as a cotton picker, stagehand, professional football player, and war correspondent for Life magazine during World War II. He describes his four marriages (including his much-publicized divorce from photographer Margaret Bourke-White). He writes of the sacrifices he made and the rejections he suffered during the years he was struggling to have his work published. In his own unique style, Erskine Caldwell shares his perspective on a life as full and interesting as any he ever dreamed up for his characters.
