The Australian Accounting Standards Board (AASB) has published its Research Report No. 6 'Financial Reporting Requirements Applicable to Australia Public Sector Entities' that also includes a comparison of Australian reporting requirements with the requirements in other comparable jurisdictions. Standard-setters from Australia and Japan take up bilateral meetings. The current account is always offset by the capital and financial account so that the sum of these accounts – the balance of payments – is zero. The logic underlying this, and represented in the double-entry accounting framework, is that the value of whatever is traded (recorded in the current account) is offset by a movement of some form of asset to pay for it (recorded in the capital and financial account). Australia has tended to borrow from overseas, reflecting investment in the Australian economy.
