Sermon January 15, 2012 Hillsborough Reformed Church at Millstone
Our lectionary runs on a three year cycle. The lectionary is four readings for each week – an Old Testament reading, a Psalm, a reading from an epistle or other part of the New Testament, and a gospel reading. The purpose of the lectionary is to keep us in touch with the whole gospel, the whole sweep of our salvation from the beginning of the Bible to the end. Thus the first time I read and preached on this passage from 1 Samuel would have been in January 2004, when I was brand new here. One of the young men of our church was on IN the reformed churches we regard the law in a very special way – we are grateful for it. Rather than seeing the law as confining and restrictive, we see it as liberating and freeing. If we follow God’s laws, our lives will be full and rich, and so we say thank you to God for the law. The cross has a vertical member and a horizontal member. For our lives as God’s people, the vertical has to be right first, then comes all the rest, the horizontal. Churches which are at a loss have forgotten this – they think it is all up to them, and hence when the going gets tough, they feel like they have failed. They have forgotten that the foundation is divine – the relationship with God in Jesus Christ. When that is right, all the rest falls into place.

Christ's Churches Purely Reformed: A Social History of Calvinism. Professor Philip Benedict. Thankfully, this book is not social history in the sense that it is concerned with lots of numbers and the lives of non-elites. Instead, Philip Benedict's Christ's Churches Purely Reformed is a magnificent survey of the Reformed movement in Europe during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. "Although the very term Reformed church was infused with ambiguities around 1600, the sense of fellowship and solidarity among these churches was powerful" (291). Most notably, these churches were willing to take communion with one another, the true witness to perceived Christian unity.

Congregants still meet at the original Hillsborough Reformed Church at Millstone, one of the oldest churches in Hillsborough.

Along with Rev. Dr. Fred Mueller, a council of six elders and six deacons run the church. Services are held Sundays at 10am, with Sunday School classes meeting from 9 to 9:50 am.

The church has a choral ensemble, a women's choral ensemble, and adult, teenager and child bell choirs to accompany services.

Our church is, in many ways an extended family. We are a multi-generational congregation with activities and learning experiences for all ages. We come together from a wealth of diverse backgrounds and from all walks of life to worship and serve together.
