

Dear Parents of Rising First Grade Students:

We are looking forward to meeting and working with each of you next school year. We know that your children have worked hard in Kindergarten and have learned so much. During the summer, every child entering First Grade must read the following two books: Leo the Late Bloomer by Robert Kraus and Ten Apples Up on Top by Theo LeSieg (Dr. Seuss). Please don't read the "board book" version- it is abridged. We will discuss these two stories when we come back to school.

To encourage and continue the love of reading, we have put together a suggested Summer Reading List. You may also choose books that are not on this list. Your child may read the book orally to you, you may read it to them, or you may read it together. After each book is read, record the title on your Summer Reading Log (attached).

Please have your child return their Summer Reading Log to their First Grade teacher on the first full day of school. Make sure their name is on their work.

Happy Reading Together!!!
The First Grade Teachers

About the Reading Lists The following lists were compiled by the faculty of the English Department to help students study for the Advanced Test of the Graduate Record Exam. These lists are more than that however; they are excellent texts that every English major should aspire to read, whether or not graduate school beckons. Ideally, all of us would be able to take a class in these subjects and study them with the guidance of a professor who has made the period or subject a specialty. Several of these suggestions come from a list previously provided by Westminster Theological Seminary. It is also important to familiarize yourself with the Westminster Confession of Faith and Catechisms. We have also attempted to list the titles within a given level in a suggested reading order. Nonetheless, each reader has a unique experience and particular acumen, so these suggestions should be viewed with a measure of flexibility.
